

46th LEEDS-LYON SYMPOSIUM on TRIBOLOGY

Lyon, 2-4 September 2019

Tribology In Daily Life

Call for abstracts

Tribology includes the themes of lubrication, friction and wear. We are first inclined to think tribology in the context of industrial applications but lose sight of the myriad of ways it affects our daily lives.

We wake up and blink our eyes. We chew and taste our food and we brush our teeth. We use a sponge to clean the table. We put on slippers to get around the house and sport-shoes for a run sometimes in rainy conditions. We take our car or our bike to get around. We interact with computers and phones through touchscreens. We participate in sports and fitness activities during our leisure hours. In all these actions and activities, tribology is present. It is part of our daily life. It conditions our attitude, our behaviour and our interactions with the many environments.

This Leeds-Lyon 2019 will be dedicated to tribology in daily life. Contributions on tribological issues we experience every day, whether related to our personal, leisure or professional activity, are requested.

In many cases, advances in traditional tribology improve these daily activities, and we welcome presentations in this area as well.

Those wishing to participate at the Leeds-Lyon Symposium on Tribology 2019 are invited to submit their abstract, by the 24th of February 2019 at the latest through the following website:

<http://leeds-lyon2019.sciencesconf.org/>

The symposium will take place in the peaceful place of Valpré (<http://www.valpre.com/>) as for the last editions in Lyon (2015 & 2017).

On behalf of the Leeds-Lyon organizing committee @ Lyon

Benyebka BOU-SAID
Nicolas FILLOT
Julien FONTAINE
Aurélien SAULOT
Philippe VERGNE
Fabrice VILLE